[DRAFT]

Oneida, New York, [March 6, 2006] – Oneida Molded Plastics, LLC has acquired the assets of the ORC Plastics Division of Reunion Industries, Inc. (AMEX:RUN), in a transaction sponsored by Laud Collier & Company, LLC, a New Jersey-based private equity firm. Investors in Oneida include Argosy Investment Partners, Family Capital Growth Partners and management.

Oneida, with three plants in central New York State and a fourth in North Carolina, provides premium injection molded plastics, high quality value-added aesthetic finishing services, and tool-making capabilities to customers in a broad range of industries.

Services include ultrasonic welding, assembly, machining, pad and silkscreen printing, painting, and shielding. Markets served include medical equipment, business machines, telecommunications, recreational firearms, building materials and transportation. “We’ve built our business by solving problems often brought to us by frustrated customers of our competitors,” noted John Werner, Vice President of Engineering at Oneida. He added, “We know how to build tools, shoot parts, and then add value with finishing services. It’s an integrated solution for our customers.”

R. Barry Uber will serve as Executive Chairman of Oneida’s new board. Uber, formerly a Group Executive with Ingersoll Rand Corporation and an investor in the transaction, looks forward to working with Oneida’s management team to help grow the company.

“Our new, strong balance sheet and access to capital will allow us to focus on operating improvements and solidifying relationships with our customers and suppliers.”

The principals of Laud Collier & Company have managed investments in nine plastics companies over the past 15 years, and were founding investors in Berry Plastics in 1991. “Despite playing in a highly competitive industry, with a volatile resin market, Oneida has managed to consistently grow its top line and cash flow over the past several years,” notes Paul Laud, a principal of the firm.

Bank financing for the transaction was provided by PNC Business Credit, a leading lender to middle-market companies. Equity capital was provided by Argosy Investment Partners (www.argosycapital.com) and Family Capital Growth Partners (www.fcgplp.com). Founded in 1989, Argosy is a licensed Small Business Investment Company with over $300 million invested and under management and has provided funding to more than 60 operating companies. Family Capital Growth Partners provides private equity capital to family owned and closely held businesses.
